

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, SANTA CRUZ

EAST ASIAN STUDIES, 2009-2010

Attn: First Year and Transfer Students

Coordinated through the Department of History

Office Hours: Monday through Friday 8AM to NOON & 1PM to 5 PM

Contact: Stephanie Bauman • Email: historyundergrad@ucsc.edu

201, Humanities 1 • (831) 459-2982 • fax 502-7287

PROGRAM

Students of East Asian studies at UC Santa Cruz may select from among the following programs:

- A major or minor in the Chinese or Japanese concentration of language studies. Requirements for this major are found at the Linguistics Department web site, <http://ling.ucsc.edu>.
- A minor in Chinese or Japanese studies, with a major in any discipline in any division. The student is expected to acquire a speaking and reading ability in Chinese or Japanese sufficient to pursue advanced studies in China or Japan and use Chinese or Japanese source material for research. A student who wishes to complete the East Asian studies program should enroll in beginning Japanese or Chinese no later than the sophomore year. Requirements for the minor are outlined below. Students seeking further information should contact the History Department office, located at Humanities 1, 201.

REQUIREMENTS

For the East Asian Studies Minor, students must complete the following requirements:

- Completion of the language courses in Chinese or Japanese, two of which must be upper-division.
- Required core course: Either History 40A, Introduction to Early Modern East Asian or History 40B, The Making of Modern East Asia.
- Three additional approved upper-division courses in the chosen area of China or Japan, one of which may be an individual study.

Study abroad, though not a requirement is strongly encouraged. At present, there are UC Education Abroad programs in China, Japan, Hong Kong, and Taiwan.

PREPARATION

High school students do not need any special preparation other than the high school courses necessary for UC admission. Previous study of either Chinese or Japanese language is valuable, but not required. Students may test into higher levels of language instruction upon their arrival at UCSC. Students whose high schools do not offer these languages will be able to learn them at UCSC, where the language program is of high quality.

Transfer students who are interested in East Asian studies will find it helpful to take courses that fulfill campus general education requirements before coming to Santa Cruz. Furthermore, they should have at least one year of language training in either Chinese or Japanese, or they should intend to pursue intensive summer study.

(OVER)

4/30/09

ASSOCIATED FACULTY

Noriko Aso, Assistant Professor of History
Dilip Basu, Associate Professor of History
Raoul Birnbaum, Professor of History of Art and Visual Culture
Nancy Chen, Associate Professor of Anthropology
Alan Christy, Associate Professor of History
Christopher Connery, Professor of Literature
Sakae Fujita, Lecturer of Languages
Hiroshi Fukurai, Professor of Sociology
K.C. Fung, Professor of Economics
Per Gejerde, Professor of Psychology
June Gordon, Associate Professor of Education
John Hay, Professor of History of Art and Visual Culture
Gail B. Hershatter, Professor of History
Emily Honig, Professor of Feminist Studies
Minghui Hu, Assistant Professor of History
Junko Ito, Professor of Linguistics
Stacy Kamehiro, Assistant Professor of History of Art and Visual Culture
L.S. Kim, Assistant Professor of Film and Digital Media
David Keenan, Lecturer of Languages
Bruce D. Larkin, Professor Emeritus of Politics
Lisa Rofel, Professor of Anthropology
Dana Y. Takagi, Professor of Sociology
Yiman Wang, Assistant Professor of Film and Digital Media
Rob Wilson, Professor of Literature
Karen Yamashita, Associate Professor of Literature
Alice Yang, Associate Professor of History

ANY QUESTIONS?

For more information on the East Asian Studies program, visit the History Department website at <http://history.ucsc.edu>. If you have any questions, please contact the History Department Office at (831) 459-2982 or e-mail historyundergrad@ucsc.edu.